African Women In Security is a groundbreaking book that profiles 30 extraordinary women who are making a difference in the field of security across Africa. These women are leaders, innovators, and change-makers who are working to build a more secure and peaceful Africa. Their stories are an inspiration to us all.

Meet the women of African Women In Security

- Lina Benabdallah, the founder and executive director of the African Security Sector Network
- Oulimata Sarr, the former Minister of Justice of Senegal
- Comfort Lamptey, the former Inspector General of Police of Ghana
- Agnes Osaghae, the former National Security Adviser to the President of Nigeria
- Fatoumata Tambajang, the former Minister of Justice of The Gambia

These are just a few of the many women profiled in African Women In Security. Their stories are as diverse as the countries they come from, but they all share a common goal: to make Africa a more secure and peaceful place for all.

Why is African Women In Security important?

African Women In Security is important for several reasons. First, it provides a much-needed platform for the voices of African women in security. These women have long been underrepresented in the field, and their perspectives are essential to understanding the challenges and opportunities facing Africa today.

Second, African Women In Security showcases the leadership and impact of women in security. These women are role models for young women and girls across Africa, and their stories demonstrate that women can and do make a difference in the world.

Finally, African Women In Security is a call to action. It challenges us all to do more to support women in security and to create a more inclusive and equitable field.

How can you get involved?

There are many ways to get involved with African Women In Security. You can:

- * Free Download the book and share it with your friends and colleagues *
- Host a book event or discussion *
- Donate to organizations that support women in security *
- Mentor or sponsor a young woman who is interested in a career in security

By taking action, you can help to build a more secure and peaceful Africa for all.
