This interactive workshop will focus on the art - the skills, crafts, and processes - of doing and writing autoethnography. We will first define autoethnography and describe how the method is informed by both ethnographic and autobiographic practices. We will then explore the artful techniques of conducting fieldwork and representing experience. Numerous examples will be used throughout the workshop. Ample time will be provided for discussion.

Tony E. Adams is a Professor and Chair of the Department of Communication at Bradley University. He has co-authored and co-edited nine books including Narrating the Closet: An Autoethnography of Same-Sex Attraction, Autoethnography, and the Handbook of Autoethnography. He is a co-editor of the Writing Lives: Ethnographic Narratives book series and founding co-editor of the Journal of Autoethnography.

Autoethnography, a unique blend of autobiography and ethnography, invites you to become both the subject and the researcher of your own life experiences. Through the lens of personal introspection and cultural analysis, you'll gain an unprecedented understanding of your identity, your relationship to others, and the world around you.

Adams expertly illuminates the key principles of autoethnography, including:

- Personal Narrative and Reflexivity: Engage in deep self-reflection to uncover the nuances and complexities of your own experiences.
- Cultural Context: Examine your personal narratives within the broader context of culture, history, and social structures.
- Rigorous Research Methods: Combine introspection with traditional qualitative research techniques to ensure credibility and validity.
- Social Critique: Use your personal narratives as a catalyst for social change and critique of dominant ideologies.
