By Lance Erlick with Keith Elliot Greenberg

Lance Erlick was just a small-town boy from Minnesota when he first saw the Von Erichs wrestle on TV. He was immediately hooked, and he knew that he wanted to be just like them. Years later, Lance's dream came true when he became a professional wrestler and adopted the Von Erich name. He wrestled all over the world, and he even had a brief stint in the WWE. But it was his time in the AWA that Lance made his mark. He was a top star in the AWA, and he helped to make the promotion one of the most popular in the country. Lance's story is one of perseverance and determination. He never gave up on his dream, and he eventually achieved it. His story is an inspiration to anyone who has ever had a dream.

The Early Years

Lance Erlick was born in Minneapolis, Minnesota, on January 25, 1964. He was the youngest of three children. His father was a truck driver, and his mother was a homemaker. Lance's family was poor, and they lived in a small house in a working-class neighborhood. But Lance was always a happy child. He loved to play sports, and he was always getting into trouble. Lance's favorite thing to do was to watch wrestling on TV. He was a huge fan of the Von Erichs, and he dreamed of one day becoming a wrestler just like them.

When Lance was 10 years old, his family moved to a small town in Wisconsin. Lance had a difficult time adjusting to his new school. He was bullied by the other kids, and he didn't have any friends. But Lance found solace in wrestling. He would spend hours watching wrestling on TV, and he would practice his moves in his backyard. Lance's dream of becoming a wrestler never wavered.

The Amateur Years

When Lance was 15 years old, he started wrestling for his high school team. He was a natural wrestler, and he quickly became one of the best wrestlers in the state. Lance won several state championships, and he was even named to the All-American team. After graduating from high school, Lance attended the University of Wisconsin–Madison on a wrestling scholarship. Lance continued to excel in college, and he was a two-time NCAA All-American. Lance's success in college wrestling caught the attention of several professional wrestling promoters. After graduating from college, Lance signed a contract with the AWA.

The Professional Years

Lance made his professional wrestling debut in 1986. He quickly became a fan favorite, and he was soon one of the top stars in the AWA. Lance was known for his high-flying style and his charismatic personality. He was also one of the most popular wrestlers with the fans. Lance wrestled in the AWA for several years, and he won several championships. He also had a brief stint in the WWE. But it was his time in the AWA that Lance made his mark. He was a top star in the AWA, and he helped to make the promotion one of the most popular in the country.

Lance retired from wrestling in 1996. He had a successful career, and he achieved his dream of becoming a professional wrestler. But Lance's story is more than just a story about wrestling. It's a story about perseverance and determination. Lance never gave up on his dream, and he eventually achieved it. His story is an inspiration to anyone who has ever had a dream.

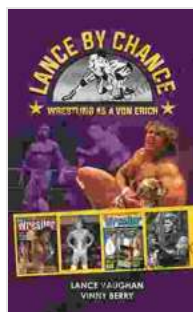

The Legacy

Lance Erlick is one of the most successful professional wrestlers in history. He was a top star in the AWA, and he helped to make the promotion one of the most popular in the country. Lance is also a pioneer for other wrestlers who have adopted the Von Erich name. He is a role model for anyone who has ever had a dream. Lance's story is a reminder that anything is possible if you never give up on your dreams.
