Billy had been a good boy all year, and he knew that Santa would bring him lots of presents. But there was one present that Billy wanted more than anything else: a naughty elf. Billy had seen a naughty elf in a store window, and he had fallen in love with it. The elf was wearing a red suit with a green hat, and it had a big, mischievous grin on its face. Billy knew that a naughty elf would be the perfect addition to his Christmas collection.

So, Billy snuck downstairs and stole the naughty elf from the store window. He took it home and hid it under his bed. He couldn't wait to see what the elf would do on Christmas Eve.

When Santa arrived at Billy's house, he was surprised to see the naughty elf under the tree. He knew that the elf was up to no good, but he didn't want to ruin Billy's Christmas. So, Santa decided to keep an eye on the elf and make sure that it didn't cause any trouble.

The elf was very naughty. It ran around the house, making a mess and playing tricks on Santa. It even tried to steal Santa's presents. But Billy was always there to stop the elf. He would chase the elf around the house and put it back under the tree.

Santa was very impressed with Billy. He could see that Billy was a good boy, even though he had stolen the naughty elf. So, Santa decided to give Billy the elf as a present.

Billy was so happy. He hugged the elf and thanked Santa. He couldn't wait to play with his new toy.

The next morning, Billy woke up to find that the naughty elf had left him a present. It was a small, wooden box with a note attached. The note said, "Thank you for being my friend, Billy. I'm sorry for being so naughty. I promise to be good from now on."

Billy smiled. He knew that the naughty elf had changed its ways. It was no longer a naughty elf. It was a good elf.

Billy and the good elf became best friends. They played together every day, and they always had fun. The good elf even helped Billy with his homework.

The end.
