Embark on an extraordinary adventure through time and history with the captivating documentary "In the Wake of Captain Cook with Sam Neill." Join renowned actor Sam Neill as he retraces the iconic journey of Captain James Cook, one of the greatest explorers in human history.

Over the course of three gripping episodes, Neill immerses himself in the footsteps of Cook and his intrepid crew. From the shores of England to the vast expanse of the Pacific Ocean, Neill uncovers the incredible challenges, discoveries, and encounters that shaped one of the most significant expeditions in maritime history.

Episode 1: Into the Unknown

In this captivating opener, Neill embarks on the Endeavour, the same vessel that carried Cook on his voyage over 250 years ago. He explores the challenges faced by the crew as they ventured into uncharted waters, battling treacherous storms, scurvy, and the relentless search for food and supplies.

Episode 2: Encounters and Discoveries

In this eye-opening episode, Neill delves into Cook's groundbreaking encounters with the diverse cultures of the Pacific islands. He explores Cook's interactions with the Polynesian people, the exploration of New Zealand's North Island, and the dramatic encounter with the indigenous warrior chief, Te Rauparaha, in New Zealand.

Episode 3: The Legacy

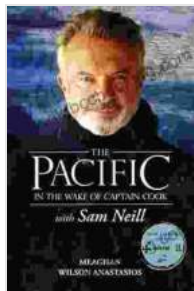

In the concluding episode, Neill examines the enduring legacy of Captain Cook's voyages. He explores the impact of the expedition on scientific knowledge, cartography, and the geopolitical landscape of the Pacific region. Neill also confronts the complexities of Cook's relationship with the indigenous peoples he encountered and the challenges of reconciling his legacy with modern perspectives.
